Using a dating agency to meet and connect with suitable potential partners is becoming more and more popular these days, as people are having a difficult time finding their matches in the real world. The rules of dating are always changing and people often find they have nothing to offer anymore. That's why going to a dating agency is not a bad idea. The women and men who have set up profiles there are all looking for the same thing – love and happiness. Finding that person you want to spend your life with is only one of your goals though. Once you've found that perfect person, it's also necessary to spend time on maintaining that long distance relationship while you're both busy preparing for your life together.

1. Staying in touch regularly.

It is important to always be reachable, especially when it comes to relationships that got a start through a dating agency and it's not possible to be together yet. Video calls and chats will definitely bring you closer together. These are elements that are essential to make the relationship work and weather through any crisis. Thankfully, there are many different ways to communicate daily, and what's more important, these communication ways don't cost too much. It will be easy keeping in touch if you use everything that the internet has got to offer – web cam chats, emails and virtual dates will all make you feel like you're actually together!

2. Set boundaries.

It's OK to feel a little bit insecure in a relationship. You might be wondering whether there are any guys in close proximity to your loved one and if they are into her too. At the same time, your other side might be wondering if she's the only woman in your life and if she is important enough. It's almost impossible to control the feelings of jealousy and insecurity but you can control the way you handle these emotions. Online couples who have successfully navigated the treacherous waters of international online dating have discovered that setting clear boundaries as well as expectations for each other will limit the chances of having misunderstandings and fights over silly jealousies. If your ultimate goal is to make a life together and get married, it is normal to demand from each other to stick to certain boundaries, especially when it comes to the opposite sex.

3. Discuss finances.

There are many stories around about the frauds and scams of online dating. To get rid of any doubts you may have about the possibility of a fraud, have honest conversations about both of your finances. If you learn your girlfriend has been shopping, don't be scared to enquire about what she bought and how much it cost. From her answer you can draw your own conclusions and see whether she understands how to manage her money or not. If you are just an average guy, talking about money is important as you would not want to discover one day that your wonderful girl has taken advantage of you.
