If you have been online searching for the perfect Russian ladies for you, then you know many of the Russian dating sites tend to be scams. Or even if the entire site is not a scam, per say, then many of the profiles might be. The women that you find on the site may or may not really exist. How do you know? Well, just check out our tips below and see how you can tell if you are checking out a real Russian dating site, or simply becoming a part of a scam.

Tip #1: There Should Be No or Little Money Involved

When you sign up to a site, trying to find your perfect match, you should have to pay little or no money. Sites who charge you more than a very minimal fee are often scamming you out of your hard earned money. On these sites, it is more likely that the Russian women and Ukrainian girls you find are going to be fake profiles. Sites that charge minimal fees, however, should not be confused with those that charge outrageous fees. Minimal fees will be put towards keeping the dating site up to date so that real men like you can meet real women.

Tip #2: Look at the Profiles

Before signing up to the dating site, you should be able to take a quick look at some of the profiles. Usually, it is only when you wish to contact Russian singles that you will have to sign up and pay for services. If the profiles seem fake, chances are high that they are. Trust your instincts. If every single one of the Russian women are drop dead gorgeous and look as though they could be models, a red flag should go up that says the site is not exactly what it says it is. If the profiles consist of a nice mixture of Russian and Ukrainian girls who vary in looks, likes, interests, etc., this is the way that things are in real life, and so this is the way it should be when you are looking at a site for Russian dating.

Tip #3: Check Out Reviews

When you find a site for Russian dating that you like, you should check out reviews for that site. I don't mean on the site itself, either. Just do a quick Google search for the site and see what others around the web are saying. If the reviews are all mostly good, then you should feel free to move ahead in using it. If the reviews tell you that the site is a scam, then that should be your sign that you need to find a different site for Russian dating.

Tip #4: Trust Your Instincts

All in all, the most important thing for you to do when trying to find a real site for Russian dating is to just trust your own instincts. If you feel that a site is a scam or a profile is fake, then trust your gut feeling. If you feel that a site is true and will be a good place for you to find Russian singles, then go for it.

Those are four easy ways to tell if a Russian dating site is real or a scam. Remember these four items and you can save yourself a lot of heartache and a lot of lost money. Good luck in finding the woman of your dreams. We hope you find your match soon!
